The Chicago Tribune says: The whole plan and contents are well fitted to tempt all youthful bird-lovers into the charming bypaths of ornithology. The Boston Advertiser remarks: The introduction is especially valuable, for it treats of how to find a bird s name, where to find birds, how to watch birds, how birds affect village trees, gardens, and farms, how to keep birds about our houses, and gives a general key to birds mentioned in this book. This last section is illustrated, and presents a very simple color scheme of markings by which to identify the feathered folk. The Cambridge T riburze says: The book should be in every family where there are children, for its lessons have been made so attractive that they cannot fail to engage the attention of any intelligent young person, yet it will also be found equally interesting and instructive to the elders. The illustrations are numerous and excellent. And the Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier pronounces it a most instructive and delightful book, profusely and handsomely illustrated and carefully arranged. A Story of Dual Personality. The new novelette, An Elusive Lover, by Miss Virna Woods, will have a peculiar interest for readers who are curious in unusual psychological manifestations, in what is often described as dual consciousness. The Boston T rmm-rz jz , after giving a sketch of the plot, concludes with the remark: In the construction of her story Miss VVoods has shown a...
